Dear Mr. Jenrette:

REASON(S)

Thank you for your letter of December 4, 1978, in which you request information about the U.S. response to the Guyana tragedy. As you know, the United States Government continues to be involved in this tragic episode and is investigating various aspects of the situation. Nevertheless, I wanted to give you an early response to the questions you have raised concerning this unprecedented matter.

On Sunday, November 19, it had become clear that the United States Government was facing a major crisis in Guyana. An American Congressman and other Americans in his party had been killed. A settlement believed to include over 1,000 Americans was involved, and its situation was uncertain. It was apparent that the Government of Guyana required assistance in handling a major emergency created by the presence of Americans within its borders.

The President, acting under his constitutional authority as Chief Executive and Commander-in-Chief of the Armed Forces, ordered the departments of our government to take action to deal with this emergency. The operational decisions within the U.S. Government in this unique situation were made by the Secretary of State in conjunction with some of his Cabinet colleagues.

Under the President's Executive authorities, medical evacuation for injured Americans was immediately ordered, and the United States Government offered assistance to the Government of Guyana to prevent further loss of life. As events progressed, it became clear that there were large numbers of Americans dead. For a time, it was believed that there were survivors in the jungle, and the United States adjusted and increased its assistance to help the search by Guyana police and military. Finally, when the full scope of the tragedy of Jonestown was clear, our Government was requested by the Government of Guyana to remove the bodies. This operation was considered essential in handling the emergency situation which existed in Guyana at the time.

The Honorable

John W. Jenrette, Jr.

House of Representatives.

The Justice Department is fully exploring possible legal remedies which can be used to recover the cost the U.S. Government has incurred in removing and processing the bodies of Americans from Guyana. Now that the emergency is substantially over, the Office of Management and Budget and other agencies are reviewing the various operations to determine the exact cost to the United States Government. Although the costs to the United States Government of an effort of this magnitude obviously are considerable, they are substantially less than the $8 million figure used in some press reports. Please be assured that we will report fully to appropriate congressional committees on these aspects of the operation upon completion of our review. Meanwhile, the Justice Department will make all efforts to recover the costs to the U.S. Government.

If you have any further questions, you may wish to contact Deputy Assistant Secretary John Bushnell. His telephone is 632-8562.

Sincerely,

DD/w

Dear Secretary Vance:

I am deeply disturbed by the recent tragedy in Guyana, but I am even more deeply disturbed by the expenditure of close to $9 million for the return to America of the bodies of the cultists who died during the mass murder-suicide.

I have a few questions that I, along with many of my outraged constituents, would like thorough and comprehensive answers to.

- 1) Who authorized the expenditure of this money?
- 2) What fund did the money come from, and what- if any- legislation authorized such an expenditure?
- 3) What form of reimbursement can the government expect?
- 4) What options were considered before this money was spent?

Mr. Secretary, I simply believe that humanitarianism should sometimes be discreetly applied, and this is one of those instances. I agree with my constituents that this is a wasteful expenditure that should never be repeated.

I look forward to your earliest possible response to the above questions, and I appreciate your consideration in the matter.

With fondest regards, I remain,

Very sincerely,
